

Majmuah-Yi Asar

Ahmad Shamlu (1925-2000) is considered to be one of Iran's greatest poets and one of the most influential literary figures of the 20th century. A native of Tehran, Shamlu has been publishing poetry and other writings since the mid-1940s. His poetry, like much great literature, appears simple on the surface but actually has many layers of meaning to appreciate. Shamlu has also written many plays. In addition to acclaim from critics and readers alike, Shamlu has also received honors from organizations such as Human Rights Watch for his emphasis on freedom of expression and social justice. This volume, written entirely in Persian, contains Shamlu's translations of English, French and German literary classics into Persian (Farsi). It includes writers such as Erskine Caldwell, Georgia Boy; Ryunosuke Akutagawa; Victor Alba; Blaise Cendrars; Ion Luca Caragiale; Angel Karalichev; Aziz Nesin; Ian Creanga; Mark Twain; Anton Chekov; Giovanni Guareschi; Edgar Allan Poe; Charlie Chaplin; Bernard Dadie; Franz Kafka; Selma Lagerlof; and Rene Barjavel.
