

Prince Charmin' - "Are you sure you want to refuse that request?" - A Charming little tale. Was that ending a little obvious? Bobby - Inspired by The 'ups and downs' of The River Thames, my twist on the original concept of 'The Ghost Story'. Lipstick on your collar - All Blue Jeans and 'Bobby Sox', bring back the 50's, they rock. Escape - Challenge; To write a fairy story ... can you tell it might not be my genre of choice? But here is my offering, it's a very dirty little tale.. Mina's Baby -This has always been one of my favourites, I loved it so much that I borrowed part of it for; Mira and The Purple Queen's bonding which can be found in; The Tirnano - Book 1 - FINN (That's a blatant and obvious plug) Red Rock Dancer. Introduction by Karen Bessey Pease to set the scene. Great fun, Janice Ivy is a very busy lady, and a talented authoress who taught me a great deal about 'thinking outside the box. She found time to add her great talent to a genre which was totally outside her comfort zone. Well done Jan, I salute you. The Shooting of Isla B. Black - This time a little collaboration with that very fine authoress and virtual friend, Karen Bessey Pease; Kaz from Maine has a great love for her state and campaigns tirelessly to maintain the beauty of her surroundings. I dragged her across the muddy divide to the wild lands of Devon and demanded that she understand us strange 'Brits'. I think she did very well. Thanks for the fun time Kaz. Ode to a Butterfly -I think it speaks for itself. Kassy, this one as always is for you, my first born. think?... The Seance - Apologies to all true Scots for the strange accents at the start... but it's all a bit of fun. THE HOLBORN INCIDENT... The Anakim, Children of the Watchers - And among a few others another book extract this time from; The Tirnano - Book 1- FINN, the Holborn Incident in its entirety:
