Not illustrated. 1835 edition. Excerpt: ... TRIM CASTLE. There is no evidence of the existence of a Castle in Trim before the coming of the English into Ireland--the only strong hold appears to have been the Church: we learn from the Annals of Innisfallen, as quoted in Lanigans Ecclesiastical History, that in 1127, Connor OLochlin, an Ulster Prince, having marched with a great army into Meath, among, other depredations, burned the steeple of the Church of Trini, in which a very considerable number of persons had taken refuge. In 1172-- Hugh de Lacy obtained at Wexford, from Henry 2d for the service of 50 Knights, a grant of the Palatinate of Meath,(which comprehended the present counties of Meath, Westmeath, Longford, and part of the Kings County,) in as full and ample a manner as it was possessed by Murcard Humelachlin.f and having given large districts to several of his friends and followers, whose descendants were afterwards known as de Ladys Barons,? he reserved the greater portion of this vast See Appendix No. 1. t 1290--OMelaghelin, King of Meath, was this year slain.--Pembri Dge. 1314--Edward the 2d. summons Omalan Helyn, Chief of the Irish of Meath, with others, to assist the harl of Ulster against the Scots Rym.
